JSAT Acquires ISO 14001 Certification

JSAT Corporation today announced that it has acquired ISO 14001 certification, the international standard for environmental management system (EMS).

JSAT's Environmental Policy consists of four major themes:

- (1) being a satellite operator that considers environmental protection and convenience;
- (2) operating environmentally sound satellite control centers;
- (3) promoting work practices that constantly take into account environmental protection; and
- (4) setting and communicating goals for continuous environmental activities.

As a leading satellite operator in the Asia-Pacific region, JSAT is determined to continually improve its EMS, as well as to build greater awareness of the need for environmental protection among its employees.

Details of the ISO 14001 certification are as follows:

1) Date certified

December 25, 2002

2) Defined sites subject to certification

Provision of satellite communication services in the above organization including Headquarters, Yokohama Satellite Control Center, Gunma Satellite Control Station and Osaka Branch Office

3) Accredited Company

Japan Audit and Certification Organization for Environment and Quality (JACO)
